Subject: timeline

Hi, Simma – I have a couple of tweaks to our briefing sheets, so thought I'd go ahead and send the timeline updates for you to use:

- FDEP is awaiting EPA's input on third party-suggested rule changes before proceeding with submitting the draft rule for formal internal review (2 days), and then to OFARR (7-day review). With OFARR's approval, FDEP can publish a Notice of Public Rulemaking (NOPR) to initiate the NOPR 21-day public comment period. NOPR public comment will be followed by 7 days for public hearing.
- The earliest Florida could have a lawfully adopted rule for submission to their Secretary of State is now early December; if unchanged and unchallenged, the rule could become final 20-30 days later.
- If public comments warrant substantive changes to the rule, issuing a Notice of Change and taking the changed rule back through the NOPR process would add a month.
- Package submission likely pushed out to December or later
- Early December submission = EPA decision early April 2019 (120 days) or mid-February (65 days)
